"It's About Time"

A PWEA Campaign Centered on Employee Workload

Each year, more and more things are added to the plates of PWCS employees: more paperwork, more meetings, more data, more spreadsheets, more documentation, more technology, and more training, while things are rarely, if ever, taken away. These excessive demands and crushing workload requirements take away from our most important job: providing safe, healthy and productive learning conditions for our students.

My signature below indicates that I am concerned with the issue of employee workload; that I believe employee workloads should be reduced; that professionals have the right to use their FLEX Days, planning time, and workdays as they see fit; and that reducing workload will lead to improved employee morale and increased student learning.
